Five years ago, I was wondering what it feels like to be part of this community that is seemingly so united and so passionate about their basketball. However, in my final year in the Ateneo, I realized how naive I was. There are far more important issues I should be involved in. I will continue to cheer for the Blue Eagles, but now with the realization that what unites us are causes much bigger than any sport. For this, I am proud to call myself an Atenean.
