MINOR IN ECONOMICS

Anna Maria M. Avila

Being a math major was not only one of the most challenging things about college, but it is also one of the things I am most grateful for. It has taught me to look at problems differently in order to overcome them, and to appreciate the beauty in math and everything else. I enjoyed learning new things rather than getting their quantitative equivalent. Being in Ateneo made me believe that what I can do is not limited, and that I can use everything I learned to serve a cause greater than myself.
