

Keisha Carina S. Lao

There was a time in France when Keisha and I were still awake at dawn, rolling on the floor laughing hysterically until we fell back into comfortable silence. Our friendship revolves around genuinely enjoying each other's company with or without words. 3 years have taught me that friendship is never measured in physical presence but in loyalty even when apart. At the end of the day, I find myself going back to her. Even when seemingly subdued by the darkness, she always manages to find the light.

Annika Andrea S. Lastimosa

Here's to all the times I was convinced I wouldn't survive, yet did anyways. Here's to you, Ateneo, for constantly reminding me that I'm stronger than I think.