

MINOR IN MUSIC LITERATURE

Jose Miguel S. Manlulo

I was lost in the halls earlier on in my college life looking for meaning and purpose. I got a little too lucky when I found a family in the Ateneo Musicians' Pool. Here, I found everything — people to grow with, people to learn from, people to take care of, and people to love. Without them meaning to, they all taught me how to stay strong for them and for myself; they taught me how to rock.

And my biggest take-away? When everything in life starts to suck, never forget to: KEEP. ON. ROCKING.

James Anthony P. Manuud

“Do not follow where the path may lead. Go, instead, where there is no path and leave a trail.” (Ralph Waldo Emerson)