I was a wave cast away from the shore of home, onto the depths of the unknown. Blue and white, like the swirling tides of the sea, Ateneo's heart had bled into me. Turbulent, the course had been yet it took me to places I've never seen. Raging was the voyage and vast was the horizon, yet these years that passed gave me a greater reason: to encounter larger seas and break through the strongest breeze. Here's to realities that were once just a dream; here's to the shore that I'm destined to be in.

March is someone I'm entirely grateful to have met. Full of unlimited joy and energy, he is always ready for anything. I know he'll get through whatever challenge he'd face because he gives nothing less than 100%, whether it is for OrSem, the InTACT team, or being my support system. He's a true example of hard work, service, and genuine heart. We'll always have each other's backs - through the good, the bad, and the boys. I am very proud and happy to call him my best friend.
