Here's to all that was learned, both the graded and ungraded; to the professors, friends and family who helped me interpret the stars we steer by and harness the wind from the storms we must brave. From the lull of port to the roar of open sea, the horizon always lays ahead, never drawing nearer. But the journey is the real story, and the uncharted awaits illuminated by the most peculiar light.

Emmanuel S. Natividad

"I am Ateneo's unfinished project." I still believe in that quote, even after graduating from Ateneo de Naga University High School. Even as the college graduation approaches, the message of the quote still applies: each of us can still become a better person. The college journey ends, but each of us will embark a new journey of self-improvement. We are and will always be Ateneo's unfinished projects.
