

Kelvin Jhones G. Aliga

Here's to the Accounting and QMT all-nighters, the Marketing and LS sleepovers, the oral exam breakdowns and choke-ups, the tardies and absences, the Saturday NSTP's and JEEP's, the Ateneo-La Salle games, the cups of coffee and bottles of beer, the parties and hangovers, the ups and downs, and the struggles and triumphs. To my blockmates, my professors, and my friends: thank you for making this place a home for me. To Ateneo: 'thank you' will never be enough for all the memories we shared.

MINOR IN FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

Jasmine Marie B. Almazar

"I fall down, I get up, I fall down. All the while I keep dancing." (Anonymous)
College made me painfully aware of my imperfections and of the fact that I am not and will not always be the best. But more than this, I learned, I grew, and I discovered my capacity to transcend myself everyday. It was a process of losing and finding myself time and time again, each one with a better and surer grasp. To You who keeps me moving, thank you. The dance continues.