

MINOR IN ENTERPRISE DEVELOPMENT

Camille Angela R. Yaptinchay

Cam laughs more than she talks. She lights up any room she enters. She can put a smile on anyone's face without any effort. It takes her 20 minutes to walk from SOM to JSEC because she greets everyone she sees with such enthusiasm. Cam is game for anything whether it be riding Space Mountain in Paris Disneyland, swimming in a cave, or starting a business. She is the only shotgun with one song on her playlist, but can make you dance to it every time. Every day with Cam is a good one. (G. Tantoco)

Daniel Xavier N. Yu

Four years is surprisingly really short. With all the studying, all-nighters, and whatever other nonsense college life spat out, it's surreal to think of how near the finish line actually is now. I look back and think I could've done a lot more in those four years. But I guess it's less about looking back with regret and more about looking forward to possibilities. I'd like to thank everyone who has been with me all throughout and kept me sane. It's been a bumpy ride, but we finally made it.