

Emmanuel Joseph M. Recio

Joseph, you're not one to let life's hurdles hinder your perseverance. It's uncommon to find someone who continuously inspires others to persist despite difficulties, but you are that man. Never let go of your genuine concern for others, for it's one of your greatest qualities that set you apart. College was one heck of a ride, and as we graduate, let your present achievements serve as a reminder that you are capable of reaching greater heights.

Life comes in a series of waves.

What I learned in my sixteen years in Ateneo is that not all these waves are meant to be ridden. Some of them, we should allow to crash down on us; some of them, we should calmly accept. Life is not about how hard we paddle. Its beauty lies in appreciating the situations we are in. As I go down from the hill with this mentality and a desire for good, I feel ready for the real world to begin.
