Change is one challenge Ateneo thrust upon her students through pushing the boundaries of the abilities and ideals of her students. Philosophy has taught me to believe in the concept of us, that we are one with the world. However, in this amazing 4-year voyage, I am glad some things are the same. I am still the cat-obsessed pink-loving person my friends and family love. I learned that change for others never means losing myself. Hold on to what matters, for those will be our anchors for success.
