

Harvey Thomas V. Ong

I fell in love with Ateneo. I fell for the generations of delicious food in JSEC. I fell for the cool, relaxing air conditioners in the Rizal Library and the humidity and heat of Berchman and Kostka classes. I fell for the strolls along SEC Walk and the sprints for Bellarmine Hall. I fell for the friendly faces of my college friends and acquaintances and the stern, yet caring faces of my professors. There's no such thing as forever? I found and fell for my forever: Ateneo.

MINOR IN INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

John Francis W. Ong

I'm forever indebted to the people who got me through these four long years. To my family, thanks for believing in me even when I seemed to have lost my way. To my true friends, your constant presence kept me going. College breezed by quickly, but I am beyond ecstatic to have gone through it with you. Amid the joys, woes, successes, and failures, Ateneo pushed me to become the best and realest version of myself. Thank you for the memories.