

MINOR IN STRATEGIC HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT

Shaira Kayna K. Marquez

From the continuous cycles of old beginnings to new endings, I came to realize a fleeting time that may often come to be daunting. But these past four years changed and opened my eyes to a new perspective, where time's very impermanence is what makes it golden. These four years flew right past me, yet I've learned to make the most out every day, a lesson I will take with me as I walk out of Ateneo's doors.

Christine Joy B. Masigan

Over the course of the past four years, I have found that life is very rarely cut-and-dry. It gets messy, and circumstances are often as fragile as glass. Over the past four years, I have seen both triumphs and disappointments. I have struggled. I have stumbled. But I have grown. I am a work-in-progress, and that is perfectly fine. I am nonetheless grateful, and nonetheless inspired. After all, we are never really finished—not while there is still work to be done.