

Alexandra L. Ngo

Paths were crossed, opportunities taken, but the most important treasure Alexa discovered was the friendship from people who stayed by her side through her four years in Ateneo. Despite her shy personality, she surprised herself by battling through tasks that forced her out of her comfort zone, from simply meeting new people to being independent during JTA. At the end of it all, Alexa took that leap of faith to end her bittersweet journey in college with the people who support her most. (B. Go)

MINOR IN JAPANESE STUDIES

Mary Jane M. Ngo

My journey in Ateneo was like traveling in a foreign place without any guides, maps, or plans. I didn't know a lot of people. I got lost, I was scared, and I didn't know where I wanted to go. But eventually, I met friends I would keep forever, and I found a place I could call home. Now, at the end of this journey, I'm still scared of what the future holds, but I'm no longer lost – not now, when I know what I want to do, and I know that Ateneo has prepared me for whatever will come my way.