It comes as such a surprise to know that one of my biggest childhood dreams is slowly coming to an end. I never believed people when they told me that those four years would pass by in the blink of an eye. Despite the difficulties I encountered along the way, Ateneo will always be home to me. From the different professors and students I got to work with, to the teams and organizations I joined, Ateneo's proven to be the place where I found and blossomed into the best possible version of myself.
