

Daniel Christopher P. Maan

“Live to learn and learn to live,” a motto that I lived by since childhood, was especially significant in my college life. However, graduation does not indicate the culmination or cessation of learning. In fact, there are much more to learn outside the university, which will both cause suffering and fulfillment. I believe that living by this motto will allow me to fulfill my purpose in life. My four years of college in Ateneo served as a jumpstart towards a lifelong journey of endless learning.

Kristina D. Malabanan

We all have a handful of special people whom we hold on to for dear life just because they give us so much hope. Tintin is easily one of those people for me. Every memory I have with her are nuggets that made me more forgiving and loving of myself. See, she has a natural gift of making people around her feel worthy of everything good in this world. She also inspires you to keep dreaming and to never settle for anything less. When you have someone like her in your life, you are never letting go.