

MINOR IN MANAGEMENT & COMMUNICATION

Sixto L. Dy III

“You loved me at my worst.” After an academic probation and a break-up, senior year was supposed to be your worst year. But you said I changed that. I made you want to become a better person. “I’m so lucky to have you”, you said. But, love, how stupid of you not to see that I’m the lucky one to have a man who is so full of love that you only see good in others. YOU inspire me to be better, to be more like you. To be you is my goal, to be with you is my dream come true. (K.M.)
