It's difficult to put into words the four years I've had in Ateneo. It was definitely a roller coaster ride with many ups and downs, but I have no regrets. I realized that actually learning is more important than getting that A, that enjoying a rare hangout with friends is more important than doing my readings for class next meeting, and that engaging with professors is more important than just quietly attending class. I have developed a great deal in Ateneo, and I am forever grateful for that.
