Everyone deals with trouble differently, but if trouble is a merry band of misfit friends (some thinking they're breathing trash), what do you do? Well, you get to know 'em, laugh with 'em, cry with 'em, until you feel like you need to die for a new beginning. And to be frank, these four years were about me rejecting me. It was about me getting out of myself, listening to what my friends need because I realized that I am not just me. I am the sum of all experiences of the people I love.
