Being called a True Blue has become no easy feat. Ateneo has taught me to soar to endless possibilities. The hill that has long stood as my home has brought me to high mighty flights and endless cries of the blue and white.

In my sixteen-year long voyage of hardships and celebrations, the only thing that has mattered is the ride from within; with my friends, family, and mentors. As I walk down the hill and look back, only one thought comes to mind, “Ang sarap maging Atenista.”

Ateneo taught me to do more: to think, laugh, live, and love more. I realize life can be so much more colorful when you claim it and put in some extra effort to live it. Right now everything's surreal, but I guess I just have to count on the few months I have left to make the most out of it all. This is dedicated to my family especially my parents, sisters, aunt and uncle, and cousins. Thank you to my friends, blockmates, and my organization. Thank you, Ateneo. And thank you, God, for everything!
