

MINOR IN PHILOSOPHY

Julio Rinaldo D. Nemeño

A write-up should be a reflection that should either disturb or comfort me when I look back at it in 15 years.

I dream of hustling to an ideal where I'm disciplined, I notice and not just see, I know what are up to me and those that aren't, I make an effort to grow with my loved ones, and where I fight for something bigger than myself.

The reality with ideals is that it's asymptotic; we never absolutely reach them. Maybe that's why we don't exist to simply be, but be always becoming.

MINOR IN ENTERPRISE DEVELOPMENT

Franz Naomi V. Nisperos

Being an Atenean is both a privilege and a challenge. Sleepless nights, breakdowns and failures came in my way before I was able to triumph and earn A's. My college experience taught me to consider every hurdle as a breakthrough to success. For that, I am today and forever will be grateful for the four years I spent in the campus. Thank you, Ateneo.