

Jaren Ryan M. Rex

As I look back on my five years of college, I see what I will miss most: the one-on-one and group tutorials, the exhilaration of a programming competition, and the profound joy of solving a difficult problem. Special thanks to my block mates, who helped me grow socially, to the Ateneo Programming Varsity, for nurturing my love for programming and giving me another avenue to excel in, and to my physics professors, who instilled in me the discipline to solve the most challenging problems.
