

Justine L. Savet

Savet has the courage to go against the current—something not many are ready to do. He has a gift with words, which he uses to inspire, console, and more importantly, express truths that we often have difficulty dealing with. His willingness to deal with these truths, even those that concern him, have allowed him to constantly pursue a better version of himself. In a world where it is so enticing to be mediocre, he is the voice that reminds us that there is still value in doing well.

MINOR IN DEVELOPMENT MANAGEMENT

To those endless nights of procrastinating by adding more motivational quotes on sticky notes to my wall instead of typing that 10-page paper due in a few hours or to disgusting yet exhilarating days of surviving hell week but sacrificing sleep or showers –
We made it. And hopefully, when we make that first step out as adults, we remember to be disturbed and selfless. Disturbed, that we are not content to settle with our current realities. Selfless, that we do something about them.
