

Joshmarck Fernald M. Piencenaves

A famous song from the 2000's is in my head. The road I walk is no lonely one. It is filled with the hands that have pulled me through the depth of hopelessness, and have pushed me to keep on walking. I travel through the thick fog. I have many to thank for helping me walk my path: family, friends, professors, teachers, and many other people. I love you all and thank you.

Ianthe Kirsten P. Pimentel

When my responsibilities called, and the drive for excellence was exceptionally strong, I did what my heart told me to do.

I slept.

But hey!

I made it.

Thanks, Ateneo!