Four years ago, I left the comforts of home and bravely dove into the world of the unknown. As I journeyed across unfamiliar territory, I was able to meet wonderful people and learn important lessons which made me flourish into a better person. Thank you, Ateneo, for teaching me as to where I must anchor myself. Thank you for teaching me how to become lionhearted, as I look for new oceans to traverse.

From being a naive apologist to becoming the “unproblematic Ilocana”—thank you, Ateneo. I did not think I could get past my inhibitions, but all the life-changing experiences I encountered, people I met, and realizations I had in four years taught me well. Cheers!
