“Pass ACET, confirm slot, buy Ateneo clothing, graduate, and collect diploma” was how I imagined my stay in Ateneo. College was supposed to be simple, except it wasn’t. It humbled me to discover that the world is filled with brilliant people, who picked up the pieces whenever I failed. Looking back, I realize that college was never about “winning”; it was always about the journey and the people who touched my life and made a difference. While my stay in Ateneo is over, life’s journey awaits.

There’s an old joke that says if you want to make God laugh, tell him about your plans. That is to say that life rarely goes as expected, and we only really start living once we embrace the unknown that eludes and thrills us, that frightens and inspires us. It is in taking leaps where we find our becoming, just as we always dive into the oceans with our eyes closed. You can’t really plan for life, but Ateneo has taught me how to be ready for it. For that, I am grateful. (D. Cheng)
