

MINOR IN MARKETING

Janelle Christine C. Go

When bird poop accidentally fell on Janelle during OrSem, it was a sign from the universe that her college life would be full of mishaps of her falling one way or another. Falling while running to pass her marketing paper or falling knee-deep into the gap between the train and the platform in Rome during JTA are proof enough. She's always asked, "Why me?" But if it also meant falling in love with her school, the people, and the memories it gave her, then perhaps falling is not so bad after all.

Angelo S. Gonzales

It was a high school tradition to observe minute-long moments of silence, but Angelo turned those minutes into a few years. Kidding aside, this quiet guy bursts with passion and talent – from his 24-hour streaming to his breezing through Math and OR exams. In the span of 16 years, Ateneo has witnessed the growth of such a genuine and competent person. And his friends believe they couldn't be any luckier, because while he may have grown up too fast, the friendship he gives never gets old.