

Hazel Catherine B. Yulo

The biggest challenge of being in a business course is staying human when it's easy to reduce everything into something quantifiable. You are faced with scenarios that would require you to make difficult decisions. Yet despite all the challenges, college was bearable and sometimes even enjoyable because of the people that support you, hurdle exams and terror professors with, and ultimately grow into better people with. They remind you that this journey called life should not have to be done alone.

Maria Claudia I. Yupangco

Claudia's natural grace doesn't just manifest on stage. She effortlessly balances the stress of school, dancing, the occasional party on weekends — and still manages to get the highest scores on OR exams and get eight hours of sleep. Ask anyone: Claudia is everyone's "happy pill." It's hard not to feel optimistic when her bubbly "hello's" ring out and her earnest questions make for the greatest conversations. Not only is she compassionate and kind, but her humility is also a trait admired by all.