

Mark Darrel B. Uroa

As I embarked for my sea sailing through college four years back, the only thing that I was certain about was my uncertainty and fear of how deep and vast the waters might be. True enough, this journey had lead me to experiences of great winds and stormy nights, of being between Scylla and Charybdis. But along with it, I gained my life long heroes, learned how to hope, found my loves, and discovered where to head amidst all the horizons. Thank you, Ateneo. Here's to more sailing and returning.

Judd Riaghan A. Vallente

The Layag journey has ended, yet a new journey awaits — a journey of giving back and paying forward everything Ateneo has taught and given me. I never would have thought that I would finally be docking the ship which I have sailed with for the last 16 years. God will be the one to reward all of those who have helped me reach this point in my life. Down from the Hill, to be men and women for others, to find God in all things. Ad Majorem Dei Gloriam!