

Maxwell Bennet Q. Tomelden

Maxi is endless conversation, dancing like no one is watching, laughter so intense all you can do is clap like a seal, and a love so intentional you'd think broken people were as easy to love as fried chicken. He is so aware of himself and of others that he's constantly thinking of ways to situate himself so that people can grow and become better, often even without them realizing it. A friend that keeps on giving, he loves loudly in the most quiet of ways. (Angela Garcia)

As I embarked for my sea sailing through college four years back, the only thing that I was certain about was my uncertainty and fear of how deep and vast the waters might be. True enough, this journey had led me to experiences of great winds and stormy nights, of being between Scylla and Charybdis. But along with it, I gained my life long heroes, learned how to hope, found my loves, and discovered where to head amidst all the horizons. Thank you, Ateneo. Here's to more sailing and returning.
