

Jynariz Daniel T. Datuin

Ateneo exposed me to various people, various lives, and various stories. The lessons and insights from these encounters also led me to understand myself and my place in this world better. My deepest gratitude to my friends who've gone ahead, my company in every adventure, and that sticky block I can't seem to shake off. Stay weird. You've allowed these five excruciating years of mine to be peaceful and fruitful.

John G. Garcia

As I look back on my life in Ateneo, I will always feel grateful for the joys and the hardships I experienced because those moments gave me the opportunities to grow as a person. I also feel sincere gratitude for the people who have supported me and have managed to change my life. Now, I will use what I have learned to realize what I have always yearned for: to be a successful engineer. I will do everything in my abilities to be a better person and contribute to society.