Resilience is an important trait that one must have in order to succeed. My experience in Ateneo has been filled with events that have tested my mettle. I entered the gates of this prestigious institution as a foolhardy individual who couldn't take the pressure when the situation became challenging. As I embark on the final leg of my four-year journey, I am glad to say that I have come a long way since then. I am grateful for the people who were my anchors during my turbulent times.
