“For I know the plans I have for you, declares the Lord, plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future.” (Jeremiah 29:11)
If anything, the most important lesson college has taught me is how ordinary I am, but by God’s grace I am able to achieve extraordinary things together with the people around me. The past four years in the Ateneo have molded me to become the person I am today in preparation for who I will be to ultimately fulfill Christ’s purpose for my life.”

Once, I went up the hill that is Ateneo, and despite the journey’s turbulence, it’s been a great catalyst to my growth. Here I learned the necessity of being broken before getting to achieve the most refined version of myself, to ditch my comfort zone and to trust the process — ad astra per aspera, as they say. Now that it’s finally time to go down the hill, there’s nothing more I can say except WE MADE IT, FAM! I’ll forever be grateful for the people I met and the experiences I’ve had here.
