People say that we look like twin sisters and we talk the same. I guess that's why we're each others' halves, even if we come from different worlds. I'd like to tell everyone the reason why you matter a lot in my life: you are someone I look up to. You are there for me when times get tough. Most of all, you motivate me to be a better person. You will go places, I know. But at the end of the day, I know that you will still be the same funny sister from another mother. Thank you for everything.
