Don't be sour when proven wrong. What comes next will stun and surprise. Why else would I be learning? Every challenge, every shortcoming, every sleepless night fuelled with coffee served as a learning experience. I learned so much more than I ever thought and overcame insurmountable odds. Not everything is learned in the classroom but every experience was worth it.

Francine Melissa B. Lucas

Francine is simply close to perfect. Her ability to balance so much while excelling is indescribable. She pours her heart, mind, and soul into the work she does, not for herself but for something greater. She may be a perfectionist, but I'd like to remember her for her kindness and compassion. She can rush off to her next class but still ask about your day and have the worst day but still give you a smile. I think she's simply beyond comprehension. With her, the world is a little more perfect.
