

DOUBLE MAJOR IN AB ECONOMICS

Loiki S. Nakashima

I cherish the small things: the way the sunrise hit the leaves of the trees, the cups of coffee, the free cuts, the comfort of a library couch, the I-barely-made-it-to-class runs, the conversations with seatmates and friends, the eureka moment for each lesson, the golden-hour view as I walk, the crash after an all-nighter, the hellos in the beginning of every friendship, and the “I made it” after every “I can’t do it.” Thank you, Ateneo, for letting me enjoy your beautiful fleeting moments.

Docked.
Compass held constant, restless to find north.
Waves overbearing, sails yearning for the breath of the wind.
And we realize that through the storm,
We are anchored.
With the whole ocean waiting for us.
