

MINOR IN STRATEGIC HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT

Joshua M. Dela Cruz

A few things Ateneo has taught me:

To think freely despite thinking differently; to do the good that you know in your heart you ought to do; to know your limits, but to never underestimate yourself; and finally, to love freely and completely, knowing no bounds.

Thank you, Ateneo. The past four years were a ride. The people I've met, I'll treasure them dearly. Thank you for them. My years here were unlike any other. I say this with a lot of pride and gratitude: napakasarap maging Atenista.

Jose Mari F. Deluria

With sharp wit, steely determination, and an unyielding drive for success, Mari holds a strong grip on what he wants. He is quiet eloquence and loud laughter, blunt pragmatism and careful comfort, and clear warmth and understated charm. Being a photographer, he has taken over 25,000 photos in his college life. For him, photos are expression and connection. Through photography, he has made many friends and has captured not only photos, but also stories, doing much, living much, and creating much.
