Kaira Lauren R. Sy

They say that when it rains, it pours. Kaira, on the other hand, started out as a light shower. As time passes though, she becomes a storm of passion. She knows a lot and feels a lot more about her interests, dreams, and secrets. At the end of the rain though, there is always a rainbow, and Kaira is exactly that. She's a wonderful combination of colors, and a ray of light illuminating the skies. (M. Caparas)

We were not supposed to make it. We were never the best, barely the good ones. Never the genius nor the gifted. We are as much destined to be great as we are destined to fail, constantly lingering in uncertainty thrice a year. We came here with shades of greatness shadowed by scars of failures. We were not supposed to make it. Yet here we are.
