

Victoria Ynez A. De Los Santos

“When one door of happiness closes, another opens; but often we look so long at the closed door that we do not see the one which has been opened for us.”
(Helen Keller)

Divine Joy J. Dejaresco

My diploma won't simply be a certificate that proves that I graduated college. It's a reminder of everything I've been through the past four years: all the friends I made, the professors I took, the classes I loved, the tests I failed, the orgs I joined, the all-nighters I pulled, the breakdowns I had, the things I learned, and the love I felt. All these made me a better version of myself. Thank you, Ateneo, for making me realize that it really is about the journey and not the destination.