

Earl Christian C. Te

The most common way people give up their power is by thinking they don't have any. (Alice Walker)

Carlo Manuel C. Tiu

At the end of every journey is a home to return to. In my four years in the Ateneo, my friends are the hearth I've found. These are the comforting mugs of chocolate who would drop everything for an impromptu movie or a random night out. Thank you guys for being the safety blanket to my sanity and sabaw moments. College life isn't always fun and games; you'll experience a whole mess of emotions, trials, and physiology LTs. But if there's one thing that'll help make sense of it all, it'd be them.