

MINOR IN MARKETING

Zia Dominique B. Bueno

College has tossed her curveball after curveball, but Zia has answered every time, not just with resilience, but also with a smile. Her secret lies in her happiness — in her academics and extra-curricular activities, she has embodied what it means to love what you are doing. To her I say: life after college is a challenge. Be yourself and don't forget. There's nothing you can't manage, no tougher task you haven't met. (R. Ramos)

MINOR IN FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

Gabrielle Antonio I. Cabrera

It's funny how you think you know yourself down to the lines on the palms of your hands and the fingerprints on the tip of your fingers, but then you go to college and you find out you're a completely different person. Before I went into college, I had no work ethic whatsoever. I crammed this write-up, so that didn't change. But really, who I am now is not what I would have expected four years ago. That's college for you. Also, the theme for the write-ups is Daong. I like boats.