

Ma. Leia Abigail R. Lavilla

This is Abby: a cat lover, drama watcher, all around hugger, and a self-proclaimed expert in cramming, sleeping and unhealthy eating. Her natural habitat is the second floor of Gonzaga, Rizal Library, and the company of her friends. She entered Ateneo as an awkward pink little human and, through the tears and the laughter that she had spent in Ateneo, she has evolved to be a better person, a tiny woman with a big heart to offer to the world. For that, and for more, Abby will always be grateful.

Carissa Gabrielle C. Legaspi

As easy as it is to let your doubts and fears get the best of you, do not let them. If there is one thing I have learned during my time in Ateneo, it is to take advantage of those intimidating instances. Whether it be joining a new organization, shifting courses, or an oral exam, facing what scares you full-on can be one of the most rewarding experiences you can go through. My stay in Ateneo has cultivated a certain sense of courage in me and I will always be thankful for that.
