While the path I took in college took an unexpected turn, I am still grateful for what has been four years of constant learning and growth. The Ateneo experience has been a thrilling journey for sure, and I am happy with myself for having braved this unique storm. I hope that the skills and character that I have acquired in this institution never leave me as I embark on a new adventure.

To the university that welcomed me with open arms, witnessed all my struggles and victories, and watched me grow into the person that I am today – thank you. Thank you for being my second home, for teaching me to love and serve passionately, and for instilling in me the resilience I know I will need for the rest of my life. Ateneo has proven to be the best the decision of my life so far, and for that, I will always be grateful.
