

MINOR IN INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS

Miguel Antonio S. Murga

His mantra? “Stay hungry and stay foolish” (S. Jobs). We can never be too caught up in looking ahead, lest we forget about the experiences and opportunities right in front of us. Murga found his joy and passion in what made him happy, be it producing videos or watching the latest mind-blowing shows. Sixteen years in Ateneo have given him countless memorable days, nights, and people that have shaped who he is today. Here’s to facing the present, and the future, with wonder and ambition. (L. Perlada)

DOUBLE MAJOR IN AB ECONOMICS; MINOR IN DECISION SCIENCE

Loiki S. Nakashima

I cherish the small things: the way the sunrise hit the leaves of the trees, the cups of coffee, the free cuts, the comfort of a library couch, the I-barely-made-it-to-class runs, the conversations with seatmates and friends, the eureka moment for each lesson, the golden-hour view as I walk, the crash after an all-nighter, the hellos in the beginning of every friendship, and the “I made it” after every “I can’t do it.” Thank you, Ateneo, for letting me enjoy your beautiful fleeting moments.