

Zachary Ivan R. Martinez

You may not remember me, but we have survived. Something that started from a simple dream became something that started hope in ourselves. We faced the same enemies we have defeated and we will continue to do so again and again. We are never enough, but we must make do. Remember to thank them. We have thrived under their help and care and you are who you are because of them. Remember to hope. Hope of the dream we started with. Hope with the people you are with. Hope to the hope that you have.

Benjamin Ryan B. Mendoza