If you're going to be able to look back on something and laugh about it, you might as well laugh about it now. (Marie Osmond)

College was navigating through seas of papers, readings, and org work. Coming up for air meant area visits, food trips, or karaoke with friends. The Ateneo has taught me to keep my head above the water through it all and see I was never alone in this adventure. I have nothing but gratitude for everyone who swam with me across the rough waters of the past four years and for those who let me swim on my own because they believed I could. For the good, the bad, and the in-between, thank you, Ateneo.
