Blessilde L. Limoso

“IN MEMORY OF Blessilde Limoso, College Student, SY 2013–2016: Not-so-loving friend, possibly difficult daughter, beloved by many cats. Every day for Blessilde was a fight to live—a fight against 7 AM alarms, towers of readings, groupmates who will probably let her down on her grave, rude people, people in general, hopelessness, despair, the sinful condition of society, unethical choices, the anxiety of things left undone, and deadlines. It is over. She has finally passed.”

MINOR IN CHINESE STUDIES

Aloysius U. Liu

For all the wonderful seconds in your hallowed halls, all the struggling hours of hardwork and dedication within your walls, and all the unforgettable moments with the people I love in the four years in you, Ateneo. It's been one heck of a journey. The world is just beginning and it is one big ocean of the future out there, but I know I'll find my way and I'll do what it takes to find what I want to be, all thanks to you.
