

MINOR IN JAPANESE STUDIES

Jenina Isabel L. Sanchez

I entered Ateneo confident and am leaving hopeful. Here, I learned that nothing is truly final; success can be shortlived, and dreams can just as easily change. I learned to take failures as opportunities – to not dwell on what could have been, but to look forward to what could be. One day, my future self will look at this and realize how far we’ve gotten. Here’s to finding myself, step by step, day by day.

Pearl Jen C. Santos

“Each design is thoroughly studied and although every effort is made to create the best product and design to the high specification standards of Ateneo, imperfections happen that makes this product a unique item in itself.” (From the label of an Ateneo water bottle that I felt a deep connection with.)