

MINOR IN FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

Ma. Samira C. Tacandong

I'll never not be proud to say I've been broken, and many times at that. There's this inexplicable beauty in all the creases and cracks of life. For it is through these creases that we shatter ourselves to make way for our lights to shine, and at the same time make way for the lights of others to illuminate ours. If there's one thing that Ateneo has taught me, it's precisely that — the beauty of life is only ever manifested through the intertwining of each other's own versions of brokenness.

MINOR IN SPANISH

Diego Roberto B. Torres

Diego is the epitome of a well-rounded person. From excelling in his academics and org work to being a talented filmmaker, he makes sure that whatever he learns from his interests help him be a better person. That is why he finds passion in injecting growth unto himself and sharing this growth with others. He believes in being of service to others, rooted in his unconditional care and concern. Although he puts his comfort last, his motivation for these acts of service is genuine love.