

Jaime Lorenzo A. Alampay

My stay in Ateneo has been quite the ride. I've woken up not remembering the night before. I've grown out my hair. I've played a few gigs. I've learned from the best professors. I've said some goodbyes, and I've made friends I'd keep forever. The experiences I've had in these four years will never be forgotten. To everyone who's been a part of it, thank you! Though I may not see everyone again after graduation, I hope that I'll make you proud when you stalk my Facebook a few years from now.

MINOR IN EDUCATION

Citarose Louise A. Alfonso

She's a good student, a responsible orgmate, a drums and football player; but Cita — believe it or not — is a whole lot more than that. Here's a girl with a heart as fat as the amount of commitment she dedicates to those that fill it up: her family, her friends, and her multiple passions. She jokes around but she also has her values set straight and knows what she wants in life. With all these and her compassion and drive to serve, she'll someday become someone as big as her dreams. (M. Malonzo)