

MINOR IN ECONOMICS

Aline Lei A. Abon

My Ateneo college life was the setting for memories that I'll treasure forever: from the all-nighters and cram sessions to the sleepovers and leisure time with friends, from the panic-inducing long tests and never-ending papers to the epic History classes and long weekend-breaker Finance classes. In Ateneo, I experienced getting out of my comfort zone and the joy from accomplishing a seemingly impossible task. For the knowledge, the experiences, and the friends that I gained, thank you, Ateneo.

MINOR IN ECONOMICS

Mikaela Rei A. Africa

There are two things I've learned in Ateneo that I'll always keep to heart: The first is that you have to work hard to get what you want, and it's never really yours if you didn't work hard for it. The second is that I, a small, insignificant person can lead and motivate people. And that with enough effort, the impact I make can instigate change. So thank you, Ateneo, for teaching me that people are not limited to their circumstances; that anyone, no matter how small, can make a difference.